Rule of Law

Governments around the world are making new rules to reduce the amount we travel to help stop the spread of COVID-19. We can all play our part to help by following these rules.

Assembly Resource

Read some of the examples of things that have changed during the lockdown period. Do you think any of these changes will become the usual way we do things in future?

How we 'meet' with friends and family using video calls and apps

At home, virtual exercise classes

Working and completing schoolwork at home

Roads and railways have been much quieter as people have been working from home and not travelling where possible

Resource 1

Look at the resource below, which gives us examples of some of the ways people might use a map.

Have you used a map before?

What is a map?

A map is a representation of an area. It is usually on a flat surface and shows the place from above with its main features. There are many different types of map but usually we use them to help us find a place or to look at what a place is like.

Treasure Map

Follow the trail to find the buried treasure!

Orienteering Map

Some people enjoy the sport orienteering, where you use a map and a compass to find control points as quickly as possible.

Road Map

Use the map to help you get somewhere. Quite often, people use maps on satnavs to help them find a place.

Park Map

This map shows where to find the rides at a theme park called Lightwater Valley.

Resource 2

Look at the resource below, decide which examples of journeys made during lockdown are essential and which are non-essential.

"You may only leave your home for very limited purposes, such as buying food and medicine, exercising once a day and seeking medical attention. You can travel to and from work but should work from home if you can."

Essential

Non-essential

Travelling to the post office to buy stamps for posting letters to keep in touch with family and friends.

A joiner travelling to build a garden shed for a customer.

Travelling to the hospital if feeling unwell.

A plumber travelling to fix a faulty boiler for a customer.

Walking to a friend's house to have a quick chat, making sure social distancing rules apply.

Travelling to buy a plant and chocolate from the local supermarket and leaving them on a family member's doorstep for their birthday.

Going for a bike ride.

Travelling to the office to work as internet at home is very slow.

Travelling to the woods to go for a walk.

Do you think what one person views as an essential journey might be viewed as a non-essential journey by someone else?
